FDR REVIEWS OBJECTIVES OF NEW DEAL

Fifth Anniversary Of Inauguration Is Observed

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt reaffirmed today the objectives of his administration, emphasizing especially the need for increasing purchasing power.

Discussing at his press conference the five years of his administration which ended today, the President authorized one direct quotation.

"The old ship of state is still on its same course," he said.

He declared he hoped for wage and hour legislation at this session but said it might not be possible to achieve before adjournment.

He declared the administration was not relenting in its fight to end special privilege, a fight which he declared the country, by and large, favors.

He said one of the principal accomplishments of his five years had been to bring about thinking on the part of people generally in terms of the rounded problems of government rather than in terms of their limited particular problems.

At the outset of his discussion Roosevelt said there was a tendency on the part of many to confuse policies and objectives with methods.

He said one of the objectives was increased purchasing power.

Telling a story to illustrate the difference between the aim and the ways taken to achieve it, the President said he had asked many business friends recently what they thought should be done about the sharecropper problem.

They first replied, he asserted, that they did not know what he meant by the sharecropper problem, that they then did not know what could be done about it but that when he pointed out 15 to 20 million Americans, in the sharecropper and tenant farmer category, had not purchasing power to buy the things the business men make for sale in country stores, they agreed that a solution to the problem would help raise purchasing power.

Roosevelt said that as a result of thinking in terms of the rounded problems of government he hoped it would be possible to get away from pressure groups which come to Washington with special demands.

Cites Achievements
Of the general accomplishments of his administration, Roosevelt said there had been an enormous degree of achievement toward his objectives. Some things, he added, had failed.

He advanced the belief that control of crop surpluses would hold up the purchasing power of 50,000,000 people and said there was a growing realization on the part of industrialists with whom he has talked that this would be beneficial to them as well as to farm groups.

On wages and hours the chief executive said it still was necessary to put a floor under wages and a ceiling over hours.

The objective here, he said, was the same as with crop control and finance.

Citing the case of finance as an instance of confusion between methods and objectives, Roosevelt said he was discussing the fiscal policy of the government yesterday.

RT. REV. WALDORF OPENS LENTEN SERVICE HERE

To Be Held Every Week Until Easter Sunday

By the Rev. Fr. B. Norman Burke, Rector St. Luke's Church

The Rt. Ernest Lynn Waldorf, bishop of the Chicago area of the Methodist church, will be the preacher at the community Lenten service tonight in the First Methodist church at 7:30 P. M.

These community Lenten services, to be held each week during the Lenten season, constitute a milestone in the history of Dixon. For the first time, it is believed, all of the churches here are banded together in the observance of Lent as a church season. Each week the various Christian congregations will meet together at the Methodist church for the inspiration of corporate worship and the privilege of hearing a noted leader of the church. It is a striking indication of the impulse toward unity which characterizes most of the Christian world, and is a promising note for the future.

Throughout most of the year people are drowned in a flood of social activities. Many persons have difficulty in fulfilling all of the demands made upon their time. Nerves are frayed by the multiplicity of breathless comings and goings. Much of the hustle and bustle admits of no other explanation than that "it is expected of us." Release from this pressure is often craved, if only for a while, so that time might be had in which to draw a deep breath before plunging back into the maelstrom of dinners, parties, shows, games, etc., etc., ad infinitum and sometimes nausium.

Lent Gives Release
Lent gives that release. Such respites of religious quiet are needed to offset our regimented industrial era. Lent restores people to normal life. During this season it is possible, without offense to anyone, to push aside social life and concentrate on the spiritual side of life. It is a relief to be able for forty days to live simply and quietly.

Savanna Woman Injured As Auto Runs Into Truck

(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, Mar. 4.—Lysie C. Smith of Savanna, who was driving west on state route No. 64, three miles east of Oregon, skidded on the ice covered paving at 10 o'clock this morning, side-swiping a large truck, going toward Chicago. Mrs. Smith, whose car was released from a Chicago hospital, was reclining in the back seat and was showered with broken glass. She was brought to Oregon where a physician treated her.

John Getchel, aged 90, a former resident of LaPayette township, passed away this morning at the Ogilvie county home, south of Oregon.

STATE STEPS INTO INQUIRY AT DELAVAN

Expect Development In Shooting Case By Tuesday

Delavan, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—State investigators today entered the inquiry into pretty Betty Crabb's fatal shooting, and officials said several guests at a party preceding her death would be questioned this afternoon at the inquest.

Frank Figuera, chief of the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation, stepped into the case at the invitation of Sheriff Ralph Goar of Tazewell county, who said his own efforts to solve the 19-year-old bride's death had reached a standstill. No motive for suicide had yet been established, Goar said.

Figuera came here last night and talked with Willis Crabb, bank president and father of the young girl's husband of six weeks. Then he conferred with Sheriff Goar and returned to Springfield, announcing he would assign two of his assistants to aid local investigators here.

Sheriff Goar indicated Figuera was pursuing a particular angle of the investigation and expected a development by Tuesday.

The sheriff confirmed an earlier report that the inquest today would be more or less perfunctory, but that "a few witnesses from the party" would be questioned before the inquest is continued to permit further investigation.

Officers are silent

Neither the sheriff nor State's Attorney Reymann Russell would disclose whether James Crabb, 24, the husband, and the elder Crabb would be summoned for testimony today. Goar declared however that Figuera, while here last evening, questioned only the banker.

Mrs. Crabb's death came shortly

Martin Reports On Activities Of Pension Division

Superintendent of public welfare, division of old age assistance, O. H. Martin today announced a report of the activities in that office for the month of February. A total of $9,345 was paid during the month to 604 individuals. A total of 45 cases were pending during the month of February both in the local and state offices. Seven new applications were received, making a total of 52 of this number, two were denied and three were granted, leaving 47 cases pending at the end of the month, 15 in the county and 32 in Springfield. Of the 15 cases pending in the county, 12 had been forwarded to the state office in Springfield, leaving three remaining in the county office.

A total of 609 applications were active at the close of the month of January. Three transfers were received and three new grants made for a total of 615 cases, the total amount paid out for old age assistance in January, amounting to $9,345. Five deaths were recorded among clients, four transferred to other counties and two were suspended.

Citing the case of finance as an instance of confusion between methods and objectives, Roosevelt said he was discussing the fiscal policy of the government yesterday.

Possible County - Wide WPA Program Receives No Action From Board

Leake Says Experience Has Been Far From Satisfactory

Members of the Lee county board of supervisors took no action on the proposal of formulating another county-wide Works Progress Administration program at the close of their regular March meeting yesterday afternoon. County Superintendent of Highways Fred Leake told the board members that his past experience with the WPA was far from satisfactory and added that any improvements outlined and undertaken could be completed at a far greater saving to the county by contracting the work. The cost of transporting WPA workers to and from the projects to meet the requirements of the federal program, he stated, amounted to a larger sum than was received.

Superintendent Leake informed the board that his office had been notified that 75 WPA workers were to be delivered to the county very soon and 30 were certified yesterday. He asked the opinion of the board members in providing employment for his group in an effort to reduce the obligation of relief rolls in the townships. He explained that it would be necessary to outline a program of work which would require from 30 to 45 days for federal approval or rejection, and foremost of the entire program, it would be necessary that the board determine the source of funds to underwrite the project.

WPA Representative Present
A WPA representative was present and was asked to inform the board of the condition which confronts Lee county. He stated that WPA laborers on the Dixon army would soon be laid off in groups and that by July 1, he doubted that any would be employed on that project. He urged the board to formulate a program of projects to provide employment for these workers. The WPA representative substantiated the statement of Superintendent Leake that from 30 to 45 days would be necessary for the approval of any program which might be formulated and forwarded to Washington.

After some discussion, Supervisor D. H. Spencer offered a motion providing that the WPA program be referred to Superintendent Leake and the members of the road and bridge committee to outline a program to be submitted at a later meeting, which was unanimously agreed upon by the board members.

The building committee's recommendation that the elm trees in the court house square be banded against infestation of canker worms was adopted.

The county home committee recommended to the board the retention of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Frye, as superintendent and matron of

Coursey Arrested For Assault And Battery Today

Clarence Coursey of this city was arrested by Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber last night about 11 o'clock on a state warrant sworn out by Mrs. Coursey in Justice T. Terrill's court, charging assault and battery. Coursey was unable to furnish a bond in the sum of $1,000 and was remanded to the county jail last night, but furnished the bail this morning. The hearing was continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The Coursey's figured in a sensational divorce action tried before Judge Harry Edwards in the circuit court two weeks ago, in which Coursey filed a cross action to his wife's bill. Last night Coursey was alleged to have forcibly taken their daughter from the mother on First street, west of College avenue, which resulted in the application for the warrant in Justice Terrill's court.

Fined $10, Costs For Operating An Overloaded Truck

William Eiben of Denver, Colo., paid a fine of $10 and costs in Justice Fremont Kaufman's court yesterday on a charge of operating an overloaded truck. Eiben was arrested by State Officers Mahan and Flach on the Lincoln Highway west of Dixon. He was transporting a truckload of frozen egg yolks, packed in china and consigned to a New York City dealer.

Officers Flach and Mahan had made a total of 24 arrests since Tuesday until today for overloaded trucks and passenger automobiles on being operated without license plates. The offenders paid fines ranging from $3 to $10 and costs in each case. The drive against delinquent drivers who have failed to secure their 1938 state license plates continued and where the state officers issued tickets, drivers were required to make application and report within a 24-hour period.

Pershing Wants to Get Up as Doctor Worries About His Heart

Tucson, Ariz., March 4.—(AP)—The condition of Gen. John J. Pershing's heart remained the only grave factor today in an illness from which he apparently was making steady recovery.

Dr. Roland Davison tempered his report of "satisfactory progress" with the statement "the condition of his heart still gives us some concern, but at present it is apparently meeting the demands made upon it."

He said blood examinations showed uremic poisoning was subsiding.

Sight-Seeing

Danville, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—A rooster perched on top of a New York Central freight train when it pulled into the railroad yards probably rode the train at least 125 miles. It was seen on the same car when the train passed through Mt. Carmel, that distance south of here.

COUPLE HURT AS CAR HITS TRUCK STALLED ON ROAD

Taken To Katherine Shaw Bethea Hospital Today

J. E. Vail of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Miss Mable Lindbloom of Rock Falls were painfully injured on Lord's hill west of Dixon at 1:30 this morning, when the car in which they were coming toward Dixon crashed into the front end of a truck which was stalled on the ice covered Lincoln Highway paving on Lord's hill. Vail suffered a long scalp injury which required nine stitches and Miss Lindbloom was cut and bruised about the head and several teeth were knocked out when she was thrown against the windshield. Both were taken to the Katherine Shaw Bethea hospital.

The westbound truck was driven by Fred Niessen of Waterloo, Iowa, and stalled on the hill. The driver had placed flares to warn traffic when the eastbound auto skidded on the ice and crashed into the truck. Niessen escaped injury but the front end of his truck was damaged. Vail's car was considerably damaged and was hauled to a local garage. State Officer Edward Mahan went to the scene and directed traffic, which was tied up for some time.

Oscar Gardner was called to the scene with a tow truck and narrowly escaped being struck by an eastbound Iowa truck loaded with hogs, the driver of which lost control when he attempted to stop his truck at the scene of the accident. The truck slid by at a high rate of speed, narrowly missing the wrecked car and those who were working to remove the damaged truck from the paving. Two other westbound trucks were unable to negotiate the ice covered grade and stalled, blocking traffic for some time.

A maintenance crew from the state highway department spread cinders on the hill, but the snow and ice soon covered these and traffic was difficult in both directions.

Titus Reynolds of this city, WPA worker, was struck by an automobile driven by Arthur Jones, 1303 Sixth street this morning at 6 o'clock on Sixth street between College and Jackson avenues. Reynolds was reported to have been walking in the street and to have stepped in front of the car as Jones turned to avoid striking him.

Jones took the injured man to the police station, where a physician was called to dress his injuries. Reynolds suffered minor cuts and bruises about the head and his legs were bruised. He was taken to his home.

Charles W. Newton Dies at Amboy Home

Charles W. Newton, a resident of Amboy for several years, passed away at his home in that city last evening after a lingering illness. Mr. Newton sustained injuries in a fall on West Mason street in Amboy about 7 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 29. Dr. Kenyon B. Segner conducted an inquest this morning at the Vaughan mortuary, the jury finding that death was due to a heart attack. Mr. Newton was born in Newmarket, Canada, August 17, 1858. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon with burial in the Prairie Repose cemetery.

Sight-Seeing Trip Ends In The Jail

Maurice Green of Harmon township went to jail this afternoon because of his bad judgment on a sight-seeing trip last night about 11 o'clock in Dixon. Maurice and his brother Sam were driving their car on North Galena avenue and at the north approach to the bridge, decided to drive east and watch operations on the repair of the dam. They drove almost to North Ottawa avenue along the sidewalk until their car came to a halt in a mud hole. They went to the home of a friend and spent the remainder of the night and returned at noon today to get their car, when Chief of Police Van Bibber took them in custody. Arraigned before Justice Fremont Kaufman in police court on a charge of driving an automobile on a sidewalk, a fine of $5 and costs was imposed upon Maurice, who admitted having driven the car last night when he mistook the snow covered walk for a street, and in default of payment, he was sent to the county jail.

LOS ANGELES BUSINESS AS USUAL TODAY

Some Estimates Place Property Damage at $25,500,000

Los Angeles, March 4.—(AP)—Eighty-five bodies were reported found and 117 reported missing in the southern California flood area shortly after 11 A. M. (1 P. M., C. S. T.) today.

Fifty-nine of the bodies were identified.

Orange county, the hardest hit of the five counties of the stricken area, picked up threads of communication today and reported 30 bodies found. Thirty others were believed dead.

The Santa Ana river, usually a tame little stream, washed away two communities of Mexican laborers, Atwood and La Jolla, each of about 600 population.

In one home, that of Jose Vargas, the entire family was wiped out. There were six children, among them a 15-day-old baby.

Business As Usual
Metropolitan Los Angeles, and all the communities in Los Angeles county, were going about business as usual. There is no food shortage, and no health problem, county officials said.

Some estimates of damage were as high as $25,000,000, but engineers agreed it would be weeks before a figure could be determined. In Los Angeles city the damage was estimated at $3,000,000.

Receding waters left a panorama of mud-covered and wrecked houses, debris-laden highways, washed out bridges, damaged orchards and farms, and torn railway tracks.

The rain, pouring relentlessly across five beleaguered counties, which include some of the state's richest agricultural land and its greatest metropolises, piled up a five-day total of 11.06 inches in Los Angeles, and exceeded even that figure in some foothill suburbs.

Pasadena reported total rainfall of 26.85 inches, but the city is on high ground.

Communications Disrupted
Disrupted communications prevented accurate checks of death and damage from great sections of the five counties—Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange and Ventura.

Telephone and telegraph communications with the flood-stricken areas, partially restored after hours in which they were isolated, was slow. Service employees battled to keep abreast of the mounting traffic, much of it resulting from anxious relatives seeking to communicate with those in the flood zone.

Authorities estimated 20,000 persons temporarily were homeless, although many were expected to return to their dwellings today.

The flood was made doubly furious by its plunge from mountains more than 6,000 feet high down to sea level in only 30 miles. It left the Los Angeles metropolitan district of more than 2,000,000 population virtually isolated.

On 170-Mile Front
It wreaked havoc along a 170-mile front—from the city of Ventura on the north to San Juan Capistrano on the south. Eastern

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Washington—One of the most important policies the Roosevelt administration is going to follow in the future, is co-operation all along the line on the Latin American front, with greater isolation on the European, Asiatic fronts.

This policy is under private but detailed study by certain high officials, and while you won't find any formal announcement about it, you will find more and more moves pointing in this general direction.

The plan of a government radio station for Pan-American broadcasts is one. There will also be greater exchanges of students for professors, and of other cultural organizations.

You may even see some of the larger and more undeveloped South American countries suggesting that U. S. settlers take up permanent residence on their land. With vast and immensely fertile areas going to waste in Brazil, Argentina, Bolivia, and Peru, North Americans could make a far more lucrative living than in Tugwell's resettlement colonies—and probably with less government expense.

With the United States having reached the point of diminishing returns, where no more free and fertile land is available, a permanent number of unemployed is almost inevitable in this country—unless there is either birth control or migration.

What appeals to United States-minded Latin Americans about this idea is that Fascism's chief influence in South America comes from Italian immigrants. North American immigrants can turn political sentiment in the opposite direction.

NOTE: One extremely important factor in Pan-American relations is the appointment, expected shortly, of Oswaldo Aranha, former Brazilian ambassador to the United States, as Brazilian foreign minister. Argentina also has appointed a new foreign minister, Jose N. Cantillo, who is much more friendly to the United States than

RULES LOWDEN CHILDREN MUST DIVIDE ESTATE

Judge James F. Fardy of the Chicago superior court ruled yesterday that the four children of Mrs. Florence Lowden, late wife of the former Governor Frank O. Lowden, should divide the trust estate left her by her father, George M. Pullman, the railroad car manufacturer.

Pullman died Oct. 19, 1897. He placed equal amounts in trust for two daughters, Mrs. Lowden and Mrs. Harriet Schermerhorn, of New York. Mrs. Lowden died July 5.

According to Pullman's will the trust terminated upon Mrs. Lowden's death. It provided further that the trust should become the absolute property of her issue.

In a friendly suit, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company, of Chicago, as trustees, asked the court to determine if "issue" meant her four children, or also included five grandchildren.

The court held with counsel for Mrs. Lowden's children, who contended that Illinois court followed the interpretation of a New York law, passed in 1915, which explicitly stated that only children can be considered issue.

Suit to Be Filed Against New York

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—Attorney General Cummings said today following a conference with Mayor Fiorella H. Laguardia that the Department of Justice would file suit against New York City for $3,000,000 within a few days.

The controversy involves New York's financial responsibility to the government for its "enticing" Federal officials into vacating the site of the old postoffice building in favor of a new location.

Under terms of an old agreement, the old site was to revert to the city when no longer used by the government.

Cummings emphasized that the suit was "entirely a friendly proceeding."

500 Soldiers Turn Out To Fight Fire In Zero Weather

Fort Niagara, N. Y., March 4.—(AP)—Five hundred soldiers—the entire personnel of Uncle Sam's historic Fort Niagara—turned out in zero weather today to fight a $150,000 fire which destroyed other building at this army outpost.

The fire started about dawn, driving 200 soldiers out into the cold.

LAMOILLE

Friends of Donald Norris received a telegram Saturday morning stating that he would be married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock to Miss Elizabeth Mead at the Rye church in New York city. Before returning to Lamolille the newlyweds will go to Washington, D. C., and to Brookneal, Va., to visit relatives.

August Borri and family moved Monday to Dazell. Andrew Ragazinski moved to the farm they purchased recently.

An interesting trilogy of style in choral concerts will be presented by the Augustana College Choir, Rock Island, when they appear here next Sunday at 8:15 P. M. in the Methodist church.

The first group of the four-unit program is sung by the Jenny Lind chorus, acclaimed for its peerless presentation of the finer, more ethereal works that have been written or arranged for women's voices. The Wennerberg male chorus which has appeared throughout the land for almost forty years sings the second group from a repertoire of carefully chosen male chorus arrangements. Their work completely eliminates the usual stamp of "glee club" standards so often found in college singing organizations.

The final groups climax in the seventy-voice choir itself singing the majestic works of Bach, Handel, Tchesnokoff, and Cain, and the more modern compositions representing the works of di Lasso, De Lamarier, and Aschenbrenner.

The complete program is as follows:

Ity hall Wednesday evening, March 9. Farm Hazards is the topic for discussion.

St. Paul wrote, "Thanks be to God who giveth us victory." The great apostle had been suffering from a divided spirit. The good and the evil were in a perpetual warfare so painful that he spoke of it as "the death." The psychiatrists have discovered that a prolific cause of mental disturbances is lack of self conquest and of inward harmony. It may consist of a secret sin, a wayward imagination, desires at war with ideals, or a wrong attitude toward life and other people. The way out is a central, dominating, unselfish purpose, that brings life into harmony. We shall find the way out of conflict where Paul found it: "God through Jesus Christ." If Christ

INDIANS MOVE UP
Bella Coola, British Columbia—(AP)—The 250 Indians here have established themselves on a new townsite, hoping the river will stay away from their doors hereafter.
Twice since 1933 the Bella Coola river flooded their village, built on the low-lying north shore. A timber company leveled a new site last fall, and the Indians have moved to the higher ground. There they have built their own homes after communal construction of a community hall, playground, sidewalks and water system.

Flying Blind

In thick weather, it is often necessary for airplanes to "fly blind" . . . to depend on instruments rather than vision and charted landmarks. Almost uncanny in their accuracy, such instruments are nevertheless second choice in the navigation of the air.

Shoppers who trot off down-town to the stores without first consulting the advertisements of those same stores are likewise flying blind. And needlessly so. The advertisements in this paper are put here for your guidance, for your safe landing in the Ports of Value.

Study them in the comfort of your home . . . map your course before you put on your hat and drop the latch-key into your handbag. Compare the products offered, their prices, their general advantages. Then set out on your shopping-trip prepared for what you will see, what you will wish to have sent home.

Let the advertisements serve as guiding beacons of buying. It's the smart thing to do.

Burroughs, World Famous Naturalist And Writer, Once Resident, of Polo, the Telegraph's Historian Reveals in Story

This installment in the life and growth of Polo continues with the picture of the community as it appears today. Contributing, in a large measure, to the substantial well-being of the town are the seven churches which serve the people. Included among these religious institutions are the Brethren church of which Rev. J. Baker is pastor, the Methodist church under the leadership of Rev. Sidney Bloomquist, St. Mary's Catholic church with Father J. M. Blitsch, the Evangelical church guided by Rev. S. C. Boswell, the Lutheran church served by Rev. Carl D. Kammerer, the Christian church with Rev. L. V. Lovell and the Presbyterian church directed by Rev. Richard Paul Graebel.

The educational needs of Polo are well taken care of by efficient grade and high school facilities. The present enrollment of the grade school is 240 and members of the faculty include Superintendent Albert F. Iske, Miss Vera Joiner, Miss Zeigler, Miss Stata Burke, Miss Anna Coffman, Miss Ida Walker, Miss Lillian Hunkeler, teacher of English; Mrs. J. D. Belows, teacher of social studies; Dr. Viking Anderson, instructor of mathematics and woodwork and coach; Miss Roberta Moore, music teacher; Robert Choate, instrumental music; and Mrs. Hazel Thorstensen, school nurse.

Grade School Built
In 1854 Peter Kenyon of LaSalle, father of Mrs. Maria Klock, came to Polo to cut stone for the Presbyterian church which was used as a school. Mrs. Klock, Miss Anna Parmelee and Miss Emma Pearson, all residents of Polo now, attended this school. The grade school building of today is the third and was built in 1899. The high school was housed in this building until the new high school was built.

The community district high school was organized in 1921 and the building was completed in 1927. Today the enrollment is 230 students all served by an excellent faculty. Members of this faculty and the subjects they teach are: Superintendent Willis Pittenger, mathematics; Norma K. Boyes, principal, French; Leva Missman, English III, IV; Helene LeMaster, social science; Clyde M. Fry, agriculture; Eloise Birney, Latin, physical education; Reuben Baumgartner, mathematics; William Nebergall, science; Robert Choate, music; Myrdred Storey, home economics; Catherine Dolch, English I, II; Margaret Kamlager, commerce; and Owen J. Rolston, manual arts and coach.

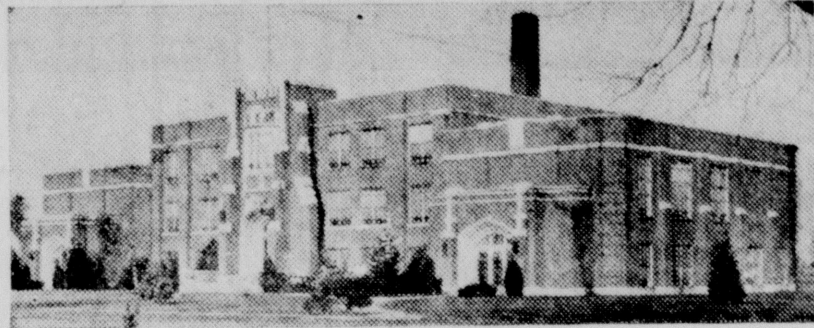

The cultural desires of the town are satisfied by seven literary clubs and a very active Polo Women's club which holds a two-day celebration each fall at which time all the entertainment is furnished by Polo people.

Fraternities organizations in Polo include three orders of the Masonic lodge, an O. E. S. chapter with a

In 1915 Milton Dingley, who at one time operated a drug store in Polo, and Dr. Markle, Pearl Herick and some other business men began going to Barber's pasture west to Polo to play a game they called golf. They became so interested in this sport that they arranged to rent the field for five dollars a year. Soon they began paying $25 a year for the pasture and more members were added to the group and included such men as John Hackett, Forest Mulnix, Robert L. Bracken and Dr. W. L. Griffin.

More members were gradually added and in their spare time the men would mow and rake the course. This was the start of the Edgewood Country club. Within a few years the group excavated and made a foundation for the club house which was supplied by moving an old church to the present site. Various repairs and changes were made and today the house is a convenient and excellent place for entertaining. This nine hole course adds much to the social and recreational life of the community as well as attracting golfers from the surrounding towns of Forreston, Mt. Morris, Milledgeville and Lanark.

Polo is one of the few towns that has a state park right in its back door. The White Pines park, a represent American women and to attend the exposition in Vienna. Though in possession of two titles, "doctor" and "professor," she wrote, "I never use either, only when obliged to; I'd so much rather be plain Sarah Hackett Stevenson."

Descendant of Martin Luther
Mrs. Mae Luther McCosh, a Polo resident until about a year ago, is a direct descendant of Martin Luther.

Henry Applington, son of the founder of Polo, Zenas Applington, was brought back to Polo from the east by his sons for burial about two years ago.

Mrs. Lida Brown McMurray is in Who's Who and has collected "Fifty Famous Fables for child reading. She was a primary critic teacher at State Normal school at DeKalb. Mrs. McMurray enjoys fairly good health and lives at 309 North Congress street.

John Burroughs, naturalist and writer, was born in New York but came to Polo at an early age. He taught Buffalo Grove school and when an elderly man returned to Polo to visit Dr. Moore. The building used as a school then is now being used as a farm building on the Robert Copenhagen farm.

And thus ends the tale of Polo—a community filled with enterprising citizens of helpful friendliness, many of whom have contributed greatly to the writing of this history.

The House of Lords, English Parliamentary branch, may transact certain business when there are only three members present, not necessarily including the Lord Chancellor.

Six Hundred Homes

There are now about 600 homes in Polo. In the past year two new houses were built, a garment factory established and a new blacksmith shop opened. Plans are now being made for three new homes to be built this summer. The city is situated on the I. C. and Burlington railroads as well as highway route 52.

Heading the city officials are Fred Stahl as mayor and M. J. Navion as postmaster.

In leaving Polo history several noted persons and interesting people of the community deserve mention in the closing chapter.

Mrs. Catherine (Kit) McNeil Hoffman spent her girlhood days here and lived with her uncle who was a banker in Polo. Mrs. McNeil Hoffman studied abroad and sang in grand opera both abroad and in New York.

Dr. Sarah Hackett Stevenson was born at Buffalo Grove and raised in Polo. She taught school in the community in 1857 and was graduated from the state university at Bloomington where she received her M. D. degree. She spent five years in Europe visiting hospitals and attending clinics. She was sent to Europe by the governor to

Mazatlan

Port Main Maritime Gateway to Western Part of Mexico

Although officially denied, recent reports that the Japanese were interested in the deepening and modernizing of Mexico's west coast port of Mazatlan were of especial interest to the United States and to Central America, because Mazatlan is almost half-way between the northern and southern boundaries of Mexico.

"Mazatlan's island-guarded harbor, already one of Mexico's busiest, needs only dredging to make it one of the best on the Pacific coast south of the United States," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Ideal Health Resort
"Lying just south of the Tropic of Cancer, Mazatlan in recent years has attracted an increasing flow of visitors as an almost ideal health resort and as a mecca for deep-sea fishermen from California, Arizona, the Mexican capital and Guadalajara. With all these places Mazatlan is connected by rail, while its harbor is a port-of-call for several steamship lines plying up and down the coast.

"Experienced travelers have compared its rocky coasts, green islets, curving peninsulas, blue sea waving palms, tile-roofed houses of pastel shades of blue, brown, and pink, and its backdrop of purple mountain ranges to similar idyllic scenery along the French or Italian Riviera.

Early Spanish settlers gave Mazatlan a continental flavor. For many years it was the chief American port of entry for treasure galleons from the Orient. In some of its homes can still be found priceless heirlooms brought back from Canton and Manila by daring Spanish sea captains, while legends of buried treasure have pockmarked the sides of sun-baked Telegraph Hill with the tunnels of fortune seekers.

Steamers Anchor Offshore
"The city itself is situated near the end of a peninsula that juts out so sharply from the Sinaloa coast that trains on the Southern Pacific of Mexico must be backed into the station on a spur track. Because Mazatlan is almost surrounded by water, its tropical climate is tempered by sea breezes in all seasons.

"The peninsula tapers off at its southern end in a lighthouse-crowned hill, which is connected with two outlying islands by causeways. These, and a breakwater shelter the harbor from west coast storms, but, owing to a lack of dredged channels, large steamers must still anchor outside. Until recently Mazatlan was a regular stop for New York-California ships of the Grace line.

"On the opposite shore of the peninsula from the harbor, and facing the open Pacific, a boulevard and promenade curve around half-moon-shaped Olas Altas Bay. Here some of the consulates and the best homes and hotels in the city look down on bathers in the surf, and on scores of strollers, who every evening walk along the sea wall and watch the sun drop into

TOUHY APPEALS FOR FREEDOM IN SUPREME COURT

Washington, March 4.—(AP)—Roger Touhy, under sentence of 99 years for the ransom kidnapping of John Factor in Chicago in 1933, has appealed to the Supreme Court in an effort to gain his freedom.

Touhy's petition said his conviction was void because "John Factor was never kidnapped and was never under any restraint of any kind."

Touhy asserted in his petition the Pacific. Dinner hour is fashionably late in Mazatlan—if you come down to the dining room before 9:30 p. m. you may have to dine alone!

"The winding boulevard that clings to Mazatlan's rocky sea cliffs is one of the most picturesque drives in Mexico. From the lofty lighthouse hill, with its lantern more than 500 feet above the sea, it swings down around Olas Altas Bay, encircles Telegraph Hill and continues on to the palm-fringed Old Port, where fishermen mend their nets and shore birds flock to escape northern winters.

"Most of Mazatlan's wealth comes from the surrounding hinterland. Mines in the mountains ship gold and silver here for export by rail or steamer. Up and down the coast large haciendas (plantations) raise sugar cane, tobacco, oranges, grapefruit, and vegetables. In the lagoons and tangled mangrove swamps nearby Indians hunt the alligator for his nubby skin which they cure and make into pocketbooks, belts, and curios for tourists."

that "the pretended kidnapping was procured by John Factor to decide public officials and thereby escape extradition to England."

Touhy was sentenced Feb. 24, 1934, from Cook county, Illinois, and is serving his sentence in the Stateville penitentiary.

His appeal declared that Factor "and his confederates defrauded the English people to the amount of $7,000,000," and "as a means for creating public sympathy for himself and to aid him in escaping extradition Factor falsely pretended he was the victim of kidnapping for ransom on July 1, 1933, while his own extradition was pending and he used his position as prosecuting witness against Roger Touhy and others to effect delay in the extradition to England."

THEY WANT TO KEEP THE NAME

Sessions of the committee on program, created by the Republican national committee, have been held in Chicago. This is the organization headed by Glenn Frank who, with his associates, has been commissioned to write a statement of principles—or something—for the party.

We note a disposition here and there to keep the name of the party.

At times we are puzzled about the desire of some elements to keep the name of an organization while at the same time undertaking by innuendo to give it a bad reputation for past performances. If its performance has been so bad, if its reputation has been so bad, why not let the name go with the hide, and start with everything new?

It all is so conflicting and confusing.
Men who made the record never sought to run away from the responsibility of it. Men whose efforts dovetailed with those of other men through the congresses extending from McKinley to Hoover never went about apologizing for the country that business and industry had built under their governmental encouragement.

In advance of the dinner, an occasion of the meeting, nine speakers were announced, with what apparently was intended to be a boast, "Not an old line political speaker on the list." In a Chicago newspaper the subhead over the list says, "No Old Guard Speakers."

The "old guard" as it long was known, is dead. We do not comprehend exactly what is meant, unless somebody suspected that Senators Aldrich, Allison, Hale, Lodge, Penrose and their "old guard" associates would be listed as speakers.

There was the "old guard" the self-styled progressives set out to annihilate, but Father Time did it first in most instances. There never has been an "old guard" that has been worthy of the name since the death of Penrose, or whoever was last of the notable group.

But we still go on setting up straw men and annihilating them as some kind of a show to the voters. Somebody must be hated and destroyed.

We listened to our Col. Frank Knox on the radio recently. We gathered from his address, and we followed it closely, that the Republican party was wrong before Wilson, and that it was wrong after the country seized upon it to straighten out affairs and to liquidate the debt, of course, after eight years of Wilson. By process of elimination we were brought to the conclusion that the only time the Republican party was right was when Knox was on the ticket.

Of course, he didn't intend to leave that impression, but he so far had caught up with this peculiar attitude toward the party that elimination left us with just that.

It is idle to talk about old guards, because there are no old leaders, and anybody can be a leader who can get followers. That is something we overlook when we talk about leaders. Men who acquire leadership that lasts are men who earn it. That is one thing that may be said for the agitating, demagogic type of politician. He never is idle. He lives on politics and usually has no business to occupy his attention or to worry about.

It is going to be interesting to observe the making of a policy that will be proposed to the Republican party. We wonder if they will have the courage to point to the fact that the real progress the country has made has been by following the principles of the Republican party. That's something to be proud of, not to be apologized for.

The three things that have made this country great and powerful are the protective tariff, the Monroe doctrine, and the arm of defense, army and navy. Those have not belonged exclusively to the Republican party, but they have been supported continuously by the party, with powerful effect. This combined policy created an industrial nation that has been strong enough to stand up under the terrific beating administered by the college boys and the other New Dealers who have used it as a great big wonderful plaything.

Our apprehension is that those who have undertaken the job of retaining the Republican name with the idea of giving it to a set of principles to which the name is a stranger, will think they have to outbid the New Deal in proposals of doing everything for the people the New Dealers have talked about doing, but, of course, doing it better or more soundly.

It has been demonstrated that the only way to carry on a New Deal is in the way the New Dealers have done. You can't spend money and have it. You can't eat cake and have it. You can't put millions of men on payrolls and take them off. You can't spend more money than you have without going into debt. You can't get away from "this business of relief," if you keep on creating conditions that make the people need relief. You can't take a club and beat prosperity into business. You can't induce men to invest where there is no prospect of profit. You can have a government that will not protect a man in his right to hold and possess private property, but it is questionable how long you can have it.

You can have a New Deal or you can have the kind of government that looks to the kind of industrial growth that has made this country what we have known the United States of America to be—a free republic. Or you may have a mess of communism, socialism, and fascism.

HOW ARE REGULARS DETERMINED?

Straws show which way the wind blows. The first straw we have noticed indicates that the Chicago Tribune will take the side of Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash in the April primary election of the Democratic party.

We note that the Tribune refers to the "regular" Democrats and the "Horner" Democrats.

We do not know how the Tribune determines what is regular and what is not regular in a political party, so long as there is no bolt of the party organization. We have observed, however, that the Tribune is disposed to call its side the "regulars" and the other side something else.

Until further proof to the contrary, we shall assume that the Tribune is wishing for two United States senators from Chicago and none from downstate.

Brain Twizzlers

By
PROF. J. D. FLINT

One of two hunters shot a fox. An argument ensued as to the weight of the animal. Having no scale they finally devised a method of finding the weight. A pole was placed over a rail fence and adjusted so that the larger of the two hunters, who weighed one hundred and fifty pounds just balanced the weight of the smaller hunter, who weighed one hundred and thirty pounds. The next step was for the men to change ends leaving the pole in the same position. The difference in this phase of the procedure is that the small hunter carries the dead fox with him and the two hunters find that this way they just balance each other again. From this information can you determine the weight of the fox?

VILLA TO BECOME SHRINE

Lerici, Italy—(AP)—Shelley's last home is to be made a shrine, "sacred to poetry and pilgrimages." The local governments of Lerici and La Spezia have decided to dedicate the poet's Villa Magni to that purpose. They propose diverting traffic away from the villa by a new road, building a boat landing and opening a public park planted with pines and cypress trees.

Restoration of Shelley's house, "more ship than house," is planned.

The two communities also hope to bring the poet's ashes to the villa. Protestant cemetery in Rome. At present they are buried in the

CRITICS HARD TO FIND

Denver—(AP)—Gov. Teller Ammons, attempting to obtain a few ideas on how to economize in state government, discovered instead something about psychology.

He sent letters to all state employees, asking them to offer suggestions for improving their departments and to criticize anything that appeared to be wrong.

The answers were few and the governor soon learned why. The employees were afraid their bosses would see the letters.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. The very cost of your life insurance is based on the theory that children on the average die at about the same time of life as their parents died, in spite of hygiene and better living. However, Raymond Pearl, biologist, has shown that out of a sample of several thousand persons, 13 per cent of those who lived above 80 and 90 had parents who had died under 70, which is close enough to indicate death is to a large extent inherited. In another study of 72,000 persons who died above 90, he finds nearly all died from breakdown of the heart or kidneys or some vital organ, which means their inherited machinery ran its course. We can stave it off a few years by better living—in the case of surgical operations; perhaps, sometimes stave it off half a century—but, on the average, the way to have long-lived, healthy children is to marry into a long-lived, healthy family.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. No. One may like tomatoes and the other tomatoes, one bananas and the other bananas, one garlic and the other onions, and one may have a taste for loud clothes and the other for sober dress. But unless they have similar tastes, say about outdoor life of some kind, camping, golf, fishing, etc., or for music or literature or somewhat similar radio programs—the prospect isn't good.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. The sooner we get over this notion, the better for all men and women, and especially boys. Many boys are forced to go to college in order to be made into a "gentleman" when they want to run a garage or manage a tourist camp. Parents still have the notion that "our boy" is different and is "cut out to be a gentleman."

AUTO BUSINESS SPURS USED CAR SALES IN DRIVE

National Used Car Exchange Week To Be Inaugurated

Detroit, March 4.—The motor industry today pledged its full support to National Used Car Exchange Week, the industry's cooperative drive to stimulate used car sales and start the wheels of recovery in motion. The program opens tomorrow.

Uniting in statements announcing the purposes of the industry's program were Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, and William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation.

"The Ford Motor Company and its dealers," said Mr. Ford "are solidly back of National Used Car Exchange Week. We are determined to do everything in our power to make it a success."

"The fact seems to be generally admitted that the automobile industry was the bellwether in the 1933 to 1937 recovery. We are confident that this new united effort to start things moving again will achieve its purpose."

"The one great contribution the automobile industry made to the nation in its efforts to throw off the last depression was its demonstration of courage in the face of adversity. That same fearlessness is evident today as a united industry moves forward to start the wheels rolling again."

Fords Optimistic
"In the Ford organization we have an abounding faith in our country's future. We are passing through a period of readjustment. When that phase has been completed we are certain that the country again will swing ahead in true American fashion."

Mr. Keller emphasized the unusual used car values available in the present market, at the outset of the spring selling season. He said: "Chrysler Corporation and its distributors and dealers are co-operating enthusiastically in National Used Car Exchange Week."

"Both engineering advances and improvements in manufacturing methods in recent years have resulted in giving far more strength and safety and longer life to automobiles than the original owner will ever use."

"The cars which have been produced during this period have been deliberately designed not only for the first owner, but the possible second, third and fourth owners. Thus, from the standpoint of intrinsic value, Chrysler Corporation believes used cars of relatively low mileage are better automobiles than people generally realize."

Favorable Time
"This particular season—the month immediately following the introduction of new models—is an especially favorable time for used car buyers to make their choice because the variety of used cars offered is normally greatest at this time. So that when you combine the seasonal opportunities with the unusual merits of used cars generally available today, the used car market is an extraordinarily attractive one for the public."

Mr. Knudsen associated the industry's determination to make available to the American public the latest developments in transportation.

He said: "General Motors Corporation and its dealers are happy to endorse National Used Car Week, sponsored by the entire industry. With the progress made in reconditioning used cars, and the guarantee which used cars offer for the protection of the buyer, there should be no reason why cars which cost more to maintain than what is fair, should continue to operate on the road to the detriment of general safety. The automobile industry, and General Motors with it, recommend that car owners with old model cars and high maintenance costs look over the offerings of splendid reconditioned cars in dealers' stocks, and take advantage of the outstanding bargains and easy terms of financing offered. There should be no defective cars on America's roads. The industry will continue its work for economy of operation and safety in motor cars, buying with low cost and easy terms of payment."

"America has shown the world its progress in motor car transportation. Spring is almost here, and the cars that have been laid up during the winter because of poor condition are now ready to be traded. The industry wants to get these cars. It wants to furnish transportation at low cost and replace inefficient units in a way that will make the purchasers satisfied and able to cover the road."

Kansan Opposes Kathryn Hemphill

THREE LEADERS IN CUE TOURNAMENT TO SEE ACTION

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Three of the four unbeaten leaders in the world's pocket billiard championship tournament see action today.

Andrew Pond, who moved into a tie for the last last night with a 125 to 79 victory over George Kelly, a fellow Philadelphian, in 28 innings, is idle today. Meantime the three other leaders, Irving Crane, of Livonia, N. Y., Marcel Camp of Detroit, and Willie Mosconi of Philadelphia, will seek to gain a lap on him.

Camp takes on Kelly in an afternoon match, while Crane opposes Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland and Mosconi plays Charles Seaback of Lawrence, Kan., tonight. Bennie Allen of Kansas City meets Joe Diehl of Rockford, Ill., in the day's opening match.

A high run for the current tourney was turned in by ex-champion Jimmy Caras of Wilmington, Del., yesterday. The youthful Caras ran a string of 111 in defeating Seaback, 125 to 66, in 19 frames, for his first victory in two starts. It was Seaback's second straight setback.

Joe Procella of Gloversville, N. Y., racked up his second triumph in three games by edging out Joe Diehl of Rockford, Ill., 125 to 115, in 22 innings. Allen, another former champion, notched his first win in three starts by trimming Onofrio Lauri of Brooklyn, 125 to 113, in 12 innings.

LEWIS, SMITH ADDRESS LOCAL DEMOCRATS HERE

Rap Chicago Kelly-Nash Political Machinery

Two candidates for state office, the Hon. Louis E. Lewis of Christopher, candidate for re-election as state treasurer, and State Senator T. V. Smith of Chicago, candidate for congressman-at-large, delivered short political addresses at the opening 1938 Democratic primary campaign meeting in Lee county, held in the Dixon armory Thursday afternoon.

Attorney Sherwood Dixon presided and introduced first State Senator Smith. The senator spoke of the men and measures of the primary campaign. He explained his downstate affiliation with the Horner administration. "I never got used to boss politics in Chicago or the crowded provincialism of that metropolis. I became attached to Horner because of his kindly influence against the bossists."

The speaker rapped men in public office who speculate with public funds. He listed his grievances against patronage in the public school system of Chicago under the Kelly-Nash political heel, and the attitude of the machine toward the Horner administration. He pleaded for the amelioration of animosity between Chicago and downstate and warned that the city machine is reaching out to undermine the tradition that one senator of Illinois should come from downstate.

"Principles Needed"
"We need men with principle to serve in this day of need and opportunity," he continued. He praised the national administration and also the state government of Illinois. He claimed Chicago has not kept pace with the new and more just day in government. He lauded the farm program of the national administration and the attempt to restore an increased purchasing

YOUTH ADMITS STABBING PAL DURING TIF

BULLETIN

Chicago, March 4—(AP)—Police Captain Patrick Collins announced today 16-year-old Theodore Daniels, Jr., confessed he stabbed his partly crippled mother to death during a violent quarrel after "she shook me and slapped my face."

Chicago, March 4—(AP)—Police Capt. Patrick Collins announced today Theodore Daniels, Jr., 16, had been seized for questioning today in connection with the fatal stabbing of his partly-crippled mother yesterday.

Collins said the youth was found at a West Madison hotel registered under the name of "E. Wilson."

He said the boy explained, "I didn't do it!" but refused further to discuss his mother's death.

Young Daniels told the authorities he left home at 4:30 P. M. yesterday because his mother had received unfavorable reports from his school.

A search for the son was ordered last night when a neighbor of the Danielsens, Mrs. Irene Hipelius, told the police she saw young Theodore leave home about 4 o'clock yesterday, carrying two suit cases.

Dr. Paul Schmitt, coroner's physician, made known today that Mrs. Daniels died after "a terrific struggle." He said death was caused by strangulation and a stab wound, but that there were many other injuries, among them nine lacerations besides a knife wound in her neck.

Captain Collins related young Theodore's face bore several scratches but that the boy told him they were inflicted by the family's dog.

Deputy Coroner Edmund J. English opened an inquest into the 47-year-old housewife's death, but continued it until March 31. The elder Daniels, a salesman for a sporting goods store, testified that he and his wife had no difficulties with their son and only child.

boundary of the flood was the San Bernardino mountain range, beyond which lies the Great American desert.

Flooded roads in the exclusive Malibu beach district, where many motion picture stars reside, temporarily marooned some film folk, including director Frank Capra, actor Neil Hamilton and Madeline Carroll, actress.

At Las Flores beach, east of Malibu, at least three houses were washed into the ocean; large sections of the Roosevelt highway, following the shoreline, were swept away, and 20-foot landslides tumbled onto the road at other points.

Palm Springs, desert resort center 120 miles east of here, was reported without light or heat and facing a shortage of food and milk.

Supplies by Plane

Pilot Dick Fagen of American Airlines brought the report when he landed here with passengers from Dallas who had been grounded at Palm Springs since Tuesday by storms.

The airline announced it would send supplies of food and milk to the desert playground by plane and arrange to remove stranded vacationers.

Red Cross officials in broadcasts from Los Angeles last night said the relief situation was under control and that no further outside help was needed.

The flood-stricken area was promised nothing more severe to come than snow in the mountains, with fair weather predicted for the low-lands.

PLANE UNFOUNDED

Fresno, Calif., March 4—(AP)—A fleet of airplanes and a ground party of 400 men resumed their search today for a lost Transcontinental & Western Air transport and its nine occupants.

Hopes that a clue to the plane had been discovered collapsed last night when a CCC detachment under instructions to examine the area of a large mountainside gash reported they found nothing of significance.

Seven big Army bombers at Hamilton Field, near San Francisco, and more than a score of other airships at various airports were ready to join in the hunt.

The search centered in the mountains as far as Castle Peak, 80 miles northwest of Fresno, in a forbidding region of the lower Sierra Nevada. Impossible flying conditions, and snow and rainstorms which were almost as bad for searchers as for the jagged country.

COURT RULES COMMITTEE CAN CHANGE MIND

Springfield, Ill., March 4—(AP)—Attorney General Otto Kerner held today that a senatorial committee could change its mind in fixing the number of candidates to be nominated for state representative from its district.

In a ruling for Rep. Robert M. Woodward of Chicago, Kerner pointed out, however, that if an objection to a second meeting were filed with the primary certifying board, that body might hold the committee unauthorized to rescind its earlier action.

The Republican senatorial committee in Woodward's district designated only one candidate and now apparently wishes to nominate two.

In other opinions, Kerner held a special election could not be held during the April 12 primary in St. Charles to determine the question of whether boxing exhibitions can be held in that city.

Judgment Reversed; Decision Appealed

Springfield, Ill., March 4—(AP)—A decision of the second appellate court which reversed and remanded a $4,500 judgment the Winnebago county circuit court direct Grant Mutimer to pay to the estate of Guenivere L. Fisher, was appealed to the state supreme court today.

Robert Mutimer, the suit states, shot and killed the girl before taking his own life. Prior to the shooting, young Mutimer had been committed to the hospital for parole to his father, Grant Mutimer.

HOUSE TAX WAR CENTERS UPON FAMILY FIRMS

New Levy Proposed On These Companies Opposed

Washington, March 4—(AP)—The House fight over the administration's tax revision program centered today on a proposed new levy on corporations owned by families or a few individuals.

Republicans who have denounced the legislation in its entirety had the open support of some Democrats in their opposition in this provision.

Democrats who spoke for the bill during four hours and 51 minutes of debate yesterday concentrated noticeably on arguments in favor of the levy—a 20 per cent surtax, after certain deductions, on closely-held firms whose income exceeds $75,000.

Pounding his points home with loud handclaps, Representative Vinson (D-Ky.) contended the purpose of the tax was to obtain approximately the same amount of revenue from a closely-held corporation as from a comparable firm having wide stock ownership.

"The tax is not the bugbear, not the horrible thing, that's been held up to you," he said.

Leading the campaign against the levy was Representative McCormack (D-Mass.), who was preparing a reply to Vinson's arguments.

Demands for outright repeal of the undistributed profits levy, which would be modified considerably by the bill, appeared to be a source of less worry to proponents of the legislation.

Civic Leaders Of DeKalb May Assist Strike Settlement

DeKalb, Ill., March 4—(AP)—Mayor Hugo Hakala planned to call civic leaders together today to aid him in negotiating settlement of the Murray Hat Corporation strike.

The issues were to be presented by A. P. of L. representatives who called the strike, officials of an independent union and the company management.

Meanwhile, Circuit Judge William Fulton modified a temporary injunction restraining picketing of the plant. He ruled that the International Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers union, an A. P. of L. affiliate, could resume picketing, but limited the number to 12. Hearing on the injunction petition has been set for Monday.

The strike began Monday.

Owns "Heaven" But He Hasn't Decided What to Do With It

New York, March 4—(AP)—"Daddy Grace" owned Father Divine's "Heaven" today but hadn't quite decided what he'd do with it.

Meantime, Father Divine, whose followers call him God, can stay there—so long as he pays the rent (amount undisclosed), the new owner said.

"Daddy" is Bishop Charles M. Grace, stout, middle-aged Negro with long curling hair that brushes his shoulders. He came to New York yesterday to take over the "Main Heaven" that has been the headquarters of the bald Father Divine's kingdom.

Grace sought the building in up-town Manhattan on behalf of the "house of prayer for all people," which he is trustee and for which he claims 500,000 followers in the south.

The actual transfer was effected when an $18,000 check changed hands after a four-hour discussion with lawyers.

his eccentric predecessor, Saavedra Lamas.

Just Spite

Miss Frances ("Robbie") Robinson, secretary to General Hugh Johnson, has it all figured out why the NRA became so intensely unpopular in Capitol Hill.

The other day Robbie scolded a legislative friend with:

"The only reason all you senators and congressmen didn't like us was because we wouldn't give you the jobs you wanted. It was just spite on your part."

Hearty Applause?

Congressmen are not noted for their restraint in extending remarks in the Congressional Record, but Representative Sam Hobbs, of Selma, Ala., has established a record.

Immediately after a recent preliminary prayer, Hobbs asked permission to extend his remarks. He did not deliver the speech but, by special permission, inserted his remarks in the regular account of the day's proceedings, not in the Appendix of the Record.

No one on the floor heard a word of the "speech." But before handing it to the printer, Hobbs sprinkled it with no less than eleven "applauses." This is to indicate to the folks back home that the address met with tumultuous approval from Hobbs' colleagues.

NOTE: Point of the speech was that the anti-lynching bill should be shelved in keeping with George Washington's plea for unity in his farewell address. The Alabamian dressed up his effort with six verses of poetry.

Clipping Clerk

Zealous inspectors who prowled the corridors of the Interior Department thought they had caught a clerk in a breach of discipline the other day. They opened an office door and found her reading a newspaper.

In the Interior Department tardiness, idling and reading newspapers are cardinal sins, and the inspectors gravely reported the name of the clerk—Mrs. Jeanne Boehm.

Later they discovered that Mrs. Boehm is employed to do nothing but read newspapers.

Boy Orator

When Oklahoma's boy orator, Senator Josh Lee, turned on the elocution in the Senate recently, Jack Garner, who speaks with a slow Texas drawl himself, marveled at the young trooper's speed.

Calling a newsmen into the lobby, Garner said: "Here's a tip for you—be a good story. I've been in these halls for a long time but that man Lee can talk faster than anybody I ever heard. Ask the official reporters about it."

The newsmen asked Percy E. Budlong, official reporter of the Senate, who had been taking Lee's rapid-fire delivery in shorthand. Budlong confirmed Garner. He figured Lee's delivery was at the rate of 250 words a minute.

"He keeps me hustling," said Budlong. "The only thing that saved me was the simplicity of his language."

Note—Most stenographers have a shorthand speed of only 120 words a minute.

Merry-Go-Round

When Jim Farley boarded his train for Florida recently, he was given a farewell serenade by Evie "Mrs. Chip" Robert, who hired an accordion player for the occasion.

Officials who attended the big agricultural meeting in Des Moines say that although Secretary Hull got a big hand, the public speaking laurels went to British newsmen Sir Wilmot Lewis, Washington correspondent for The London Times.

Mrs. Cordell Hull is worried about her husband's state of health, thinks he should retire.

After the supper hour a group of relatives and friends gathered at the Henry Kersten home to surprise Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Kersten who were celebrating their fifth wedding anniversary that day. The evening was pleasantly spent in visiting and playing 500 at which high prizes were given to Mrs. Frank Kersten and Harold Gerbes, and consolation prizes to Paul Gerbes and Mrs. Harold Gerbes. Mrs. Frank Kersten presented a beautiful end table to the Kerstens in behalf of the assembled guests. of a formal Lenten period than some of the branches of the Christian church. But our informality should not allow us to lose sight of the meaning and significance of Lent. Lent, the word, comes from the Anglo-Saxon root meaning "long." It is the "long" fast of the church, and in Latin is known as the Forty Day fast. It has always meant to the Christian a period of self-denial for the purpose of concentrating upon his spiritual loyalties and obligations.

Needless to say the observance of Lent is vital in these days. The spiritual transformation of men and a world will not come through wishing. Some one must pay the price which, along with other things is the setting aside of many lesser things we would like to do, to clear the way for doing what must be done to make the world Christian. This means self-denial. This means sacrifice. It means long sacrifice, much longer than forty days, but the forty days of Lent will be an opportunity to begin.

What would Lenten loyalty to the church accomplish? Just picture to yourself seven Sundays with every member in his place, every child in the Sunday school, every volunteer job well done. Everyone can see the result. With that vision, can you do else than play your part?

MOUNT MORRIS DOINGS

Happenings in Ogle County City Reported for The Telegraph by Mrs. Pauline Yoe.

By Pauline Yoe

Mt. Morris—Plans will be formulated late this month for the tercentenary observance of the settlement of the New Sweden colony in Delaware. A civic mass meeting to commemorate the event is planned for March 24 at the Rockford armory.

A recent story in the Rockford Morning Star presented an interesting history of this colony and a part of the story was as follows:

"The Indians and we are as one people; we live in much greater friendship with them than with the English; they call the Swedes in their language their own people; they were very glad when we came, as they see now that Sweden does not abandon them. They're also very fond of learning the catechism which has been printed in their language; they like to have it read to them, and they have engaged Charles Springer to teach their children to read it. Who knows what God has in store for them if our lives shall be spared, when we shall have acquired their idiom? We shall spare no labor to attain that object. They go mostly naked, but many of them are clothed; they are very courteous in their behavior, and fond of obliging the Swedes; they take great pains to help them, and prevent any harm happening to them."

This mention of Charles Springer brings to mind an interesting family history which also appeared in the Rockford paper: "Mrs. Samuel James Campbell, of Mount Carroll, Ill., former state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, traces her descent to Charles Springer, member of the New Sweden settlement at Christiansa and for a time a justice of the peace there."

"According to Mrs. Campbell's genealogy of the Springer family, Christopher Springer was born in the province of Hanover, Germany, in 1592. He died at Stockholm, Sweden, in 1669, having become a subject of Sweden after the treaty of Westphalia in 1648. Under Queen Christina, he served as notary on the board of domains. On the accession of Charles X in 1654 he was appointed referendary and later superintendent of the exchequer and archives. He was married three times, his third wife being Lady Feates Jacobine Hendrickson. She became lady companion to Hedwig Elenora, Queen of Charles X. Their children were Elizabeth Carl, Christopher, Baltzer and Jacob."

"Mrs. Campbell traces her ancestry to Carl (Charles), born 1658 in Stockholm, who died in Wilmington, Delaware, in 1738. He had a son, Christopher Springer, born in 1696. The latter's daughter, Catherine, married a McClure, of Wheeling, Va. Their daughter, Sarah Ann McClure, married Jacob Marsilliot on July 7, 1817, in Wheeling. Their daughter, Mary Jane Marsilliot, born April 15, 1819, married Albert Galatin Ewing, of Nashville, Tenn. The daughter of this union was Rowena Ewing. (Mrs. Campbell's grandmother), who married James Ball Stevenson, of Bloomington, Ill., a brother of Adlai E. Stevenson, vice president of the United States with Grover Cleveland.

"The daughter of Rowena Ewing Stevenson was Annie Stevenson, who married William Shufelt Bullis, of Los Angeles, Cal. Annie Stevenson Bullis is the mother of the Mt. Carroll woman, whose maiden name was Ileen Bullis. She married Samuel James Campbell, who is president of the Kable News company and vice president of the Kable Brothers Printing company, of Mt. Morris.

"Because of her kinship to Mr. Springer, Mrs. Campbell is very much interested in the New Sweden tercentenary observance, which will be climaxed next June 27 at Wilmington, Del., and June 28 and 29 at Philadelphia, Pa.

Day by Day Lessons for Reading During Lenten Season

Read II. Cor. 8:8, 9

For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.

Almsgiving, is our second Lenten duty. In almsgiving, as in fasting, our Lord lays stress on the motive rather than the act. "When thou doest alms," He takes it for granted that we will. But what is almsgiving? It is the privilege of sharing what we have with our neighbors.

It is not a sin to work for money; it is a natural joy in the effort to earn all we can to help those nearest to us. But selfishness always lurks in the background. Therefore our Lord sets before us the duty of sharing. What shall we give? Money by all means—if we have any that we can share—but not money only; something of ourselves. Some kindness we don't feel much inclined for; to someone who will not give us effusive thanks.

What can we spare? We say, Ah, this and this.

From mine array I am not like to miss.

And here are crumbs to feed some hungry one.

They do but grow a cumberance on my shelf.

And yet we read, our Father gave His Son;

Our Master gave Himself.

—Langridge.

Prophetstown and Sterling Advance to Semi-Finals

DIXON MEETS SPEEDY ROLLO FIVE TONIGHT

Prophetstown Will Play Sterling Second Game

Prophetstown and Sterling Township high schools moved into the semi-finals of the Dixon regional tournament Thursday night by comparatively easy victories over Steward and Rock Falls respectively, and four survivors of the first round prepared for the crucial tests tonight that will send two finalists into the championship game Saturday night at 8:30 P. M.

Prophetstown disposed of Steward after a ragged contest by a 25 to 17 score, and Sterling annihilated Rock Falls 32 to 19, giving one of the most impressive exhibitions of long shot basketball seen here during the tournament. At 7:30 P. M. tonight Rollo, dangerous dark horse of the tournament, will provide a baptism of fire for Dixon and at 8:30 P. M. Sterling will move against Prophetstown with every prospect of success.

Off Their Game
The Prophets were decidedly off on their set-up shots against Steward. The Steward quint played a lackadaisical game and showed little ability or even ambition to win, yet they might have done so had they completed even a fair percentage of their free shot opportunities. The Prophets managed to sift through the tall Steward guards for easy set-ups but the ball bounced off the rim repeatedly.

Prophetstown built up a 6-0 lead in the first period before O'Donnell of Steward was fouled by Moews and gave the G. R. V. C. entrant its first point just as the gun sounded the end of the quarter. Steward came to life in the second quarter encouraged by several chances to improve its score via the free throw lane. At this however they were none to accurate. At the half Prophetstown held a 17 to 9 advantage.

The third quarter was played defensively, neither quint scoring heavily. Prophetstown was held to only two free throws which were both completed by Moews and Wheat, while Trowbridge and Herrmann gave Steward a couple of long shots. The last period was all Prophetstown as far as keeping possession of the ball was concerned.

First Half Thriller

Sterling and Rock Falls locked horns with gusto in the first half of their game, matching shot for shot all of them of the sensational one-handed variety from well out on the floor. Sterling built up a 6-3 first period lead but Rock Falls came back strong in the second quarters and held Township to a single free throw. The Falls quint edged into an 8-7 lead just before half time after a comeback that had the crowd in a frenzy.

Rock Falls played a deliberate game and took shots only when they could get close in which was not very often through Sterling's air-tight defense. Sterling opened up with a bombardment in the third period that wrecked any chance Rock Falls had of surviving the first round. Swartz led the attack with three baskets and his team mates each contributed one to put Sterling into a 22-11 lead.

CUNNINGHAM BREAKS WORLD MILE RECORD

New 4:04.4 Mark Is Fastest Run Indoors Or Out

Hanover, N. H., March 4—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham's second world record-breaking feat in less than a week, a 4:04.4 mile, the fastest ever run, indoors or out, today stamped that 28-year-old Kansan as the greatest middle distance runner in board track history.

With the cheers that greeted his crasure of the 1500-meters indoor mark, a 3:48.4 performance, still ringing in his ears, Cunningham came to this little college town last night and found the pre-arranged conditions so ideal that he improved his own indoor world mile mark, which he made four years ago, by four full seconds.

He was also clocked two seconds under the Syd Wooderson's recently approved outdoor record of 4:04.4 but that Britisher's mark will remain in the books until someone runs a faster mile on cinders.

Spots Yardage

Cunningham, after warming up for three-quarters of an hour on Dartmouth's springy board track reputed to be about five seconds faster than any other in the world, spotted six of Coach Harry Hillman's green-shirted Indians from five to 600 yards handicaps, and finished 20 yards ahead of his closest competitor.

The three timers, Professor L. F. Murray, Gordon S. Hull and Charles A. Proctor, not only caught Cunningham's fourth quarter in 60.2 seconds but their watches agreed on accumulative quarters of 57.5, 2.025, 3:04.2 as well as the 4:04.4 time for the mile.

There were two other events on the pre-arranged program to give the competition meet status and since all of the officials were given A. A. U. sanction, Cunningham's 4:04.4 will be presented for approval as a new indoor mile record. "That was the race I have been training for," Cunningham said. "I felt sure I could do it as soon as I started, for the conditions were ideal. I have felt much more tired after many of my other races that were much slower."

Streamlining Of Gideon Bible Is Convention Talk

Chicago, March 4—(AP)—S. R. Gill of Bloomington, Ill., told 4,000 hotel men at a convention that it was time to streamline the Gideon Bible.

Gill previously had taken the matter up with the Gideon society. He said the Gideons thought some of his ideas were good and promised One of the Bloomington hotel to do something about it.

manager's suggestions was to brighten the covers to make the volume more attractive to guests.

The third annual midwest hotel show closes today.

In the first period the Mounders ran up a 15-2 lead, and held a 31 to 14 half time advantage. Ashton was held without a point in the last quarter; Mt. IN SPRING TRAINING CAMPS

Activities of Major League Teams in the South and West Prior to Opening of Baseball Season

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
St. Petersburg, Fla.—Here's a new reason for watching those Yankees. Manager Joe McCarthy was stopped on the street by a woman fan who flabbergasted him with, "I was down to see those Cardinals yesterday but I'll be back with your team today. Those St. Louis boys have such dirty uniforms."

Baton Rouge, La.—Don Schroeder, an 18-year-old Brooklyn youth, is the first "find" of the Giant training season. He pitched for the triumphant "Mancusos" in the first intra-squad game.

Clearwater, Fla.—Manager Burleigh Grimes will shepherd the Brooklyn Dodgers into Clearwater today with Van Mungo, Luke Hamlin, Max Butcher, Fred Frankhouse, Waite Hoyt, George Jeffcoat, Babe Phelps and Woody English in the flock. Pitchers Alta Cohen Jack Kimball and Walter Signer and Catcher Paul Chervinko are already on hand.

Pasadena, Calif.—The Chicago White Sox may not begin their workouts until Sunday. In fact they may not even reach camp until then, unless the rain lets up. The train carrying the party was held up in Arizona yesterday.

Aviation, Calif.—"If it doesn't rain"—Manager Charley Grimm's favorite prefix these days—the Chicago Cubs expect to hold a long batting drill.

Lake Charles, La.—Connie Mack, satisfied with the showing of the Philadelphia Athletics in their first intra-camp game, thinks his charges are fit to meet the New York Giants tomorrow.

Bloomington, Miss.—Emmet Mueller of St. Louis was hailed as a "great prospect" by Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies after a two-hour batting drill in which Mueller and Joplin, Mo.—Gaby Street, manager of the St. Louis Browns, will leave tonight for San Antonio, Texas, to start his thirty-eighth season in baseball and his eighteenth as a manager.

Sarasota, Fla.—Jimmy Foxx, charged over his 1937 batting slump, arrived at the Boston Red Sox camp six days ahead of time and will work out daily. The signing of Rog Cramer reduced the holdout list to three—Eric McNair, Footsie Marcum and Archie McKain.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Pleased by his players' condition, Manager Frankie Frisch will start the St. Louis Cardinals in an intra-squad practice game menu today.

All came through with knockouts. ... The other night the doctor sent three more huskies to the post in Akron and—you guessed it. ... Each responded with a victory via the sleep-producing route. ... Pretty soon they'll be picketing the Basco stable as unfair to the book-making industry. ... Fritz Crisler has made a 100 per cent hit out at Ann Arbor and all his eastern friends and admirers are rooting hard for him.

POLLY CHELSEY, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out.
JERRY WHITEFIELD, hero; the Yankee who saves her through CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

Yesterday: At sea, Jerry and Banks attack a British merchantman, their first chance at a prize of war. And at home, Polly bears a son for Jerry.

CHAPTER XXVII

THE Gray Gull, by means of the sweeps, was held poised like a restless bird in the darkness while the long boat was lowered away. In the boat were Jerry Whitefield and 12 volunteers, hastily chosen. He had said to the crew, "Those that go with me will get no more in prize money than those that stand by in the Gull. Let that be understood." Yet many had clamored to go. It was very heartening. These 12 who accompanied him were Americans, all, each with a crow to pick with England. Revenge, it seemed, could flick as keen a whip as greed or patriotism.

According to plan, the Gray Gull again ran out to sea a distance and stood by.

The long boat was rowed to the merchant ship's stern. Now the great hulk loomed and towered above them. The oarsmen held the boat pressed to the hull's great timbers while Jerry Whitefield stood on a thwart and grasped a piece of loose tackle that hung from the ship's stern like a ribbon on an untidy woman's bonnet. By means of this he hauled himself aloft, gaining foothold here and there by any means afforded.

His moccasined feet came silently over the taffrail, and now he stood on the quarter-deck behind the slouching helmsman. It was true, that thing they had observed from the Gull; the quarter-deck was deserted except for the man at the wheel, and he was none too keen. A rum bottle stood beside him on the deck.

Jerry Whitefield seized and bound this man, gagging him against outcry. He felt no pride in his achievement, for the fellow had forfeited half his strength and wits to rum. Jerry doused the lantern and looked down onto the main deck. He counted a score of sailors prostrated from drink and possibly 10 that were still active. The watch was a late one. All others had evidently gone below to forecastle quarters. No officer was visible, either.

Armed with this knowledge he went astern and signaled his men to come aboard. This they did, each man drawing another after him like stealthy Indians taking a stockade. As the last man left the long boat it bobbed away in the darkness, the symbol and the reality of a retreat now beyond reaching. Jerry, seeing it go, uttered a smothered exclamation of concern. And yet, what matter? They must take this ship or fail. . . .

DELAY would be deadly. Jerry put one of his men at the wheel. With the others he stood for a moment at the turn of the quarter-deck while they picked their opponents on the main deck. The events that followed were as swift as vengeance and as brutal as warfare. The 12 Americans rushed upon the English sailors, overpowered them and herded them into forecastle quarters like so many sacks of meal, throwing them, showing them, pitching them with a sort of gleeful exhilaration. This accomplished, they closed the hatches and secured them with the locks that they found there. The locks were stout, as English locks were always stout against the chance of mutiny at sea.

No shot had been fired, no call piped. There had been only the subdued, repressed noise of men in bodily combat, scuffling, thudding, falling. Jerry ran up to the quarter-deck and stood at the opening of the companionway. He had not long to wait, and it was no hero's work that followed. Several of his men had joined him; as the officers emerged they were overpowered and herded down the ladder they had just ascended. There were but four of them, and the captain was their spokesman.

"Who are you?" he shouted at Jerry.

"First mate off a privateer, sir, American."

"This is preposterous," said the lieutenant who was second in command. "It's beyond reason. We're just off the coast of England. We're part of a convoy. We've two gun brigs to guard us."

The captain's gloomy face brightened. "You're right Mr. Carter. You're quite right. It couldn't happen. Our men won't allow it. Some of the convoy ships will discover this outrage—"

"Americans have devilish good luck," spoke up the officer who wore the insignia of a third lieutenant. "I'll not be surprised if they pull it off."

First Court House in Ogle Burned Day Before First Scheduled Term

Destroyed By Fire On Night Of March 21st, Year 1841

The story of the establishment of Ogle county and the early growth of Oregon was recounted in previous installments of the community's history which concluded with the account of the building of the first court house and jail.

On Sunday night, March 21, 1841, this court house, which was so far completed that it was planned to use it for court session on Monday, March 22, was burned to the ground. Several indictments were pending for trial and six of the indicted parties were in jail awaiting the sitting of the court. All Sunday the town was full of men known to belong to the Prairie Pirates, evidently watching the movements of the court officers. B. T. Phelps, at that time clerk of the circuit court, kept the books and papers of the office at his residence. On Sunday evening he loaded the records on a wheelbarrow and started to remove them to the court house to have them in readiness when court was called the next morning.

When part of the way to the court house, he was met by E. R. Dodge, a lawyer of Ottawa, who could not find accommodations at the hotel because of its crowded condition and who was on his way to Phelps' residence to claim his hospitality for the night. Luckily Mr. Phelps did not continue to the court house with the records, but turned back with Mr. Dodge, taking the papers back with him and storing them away in his house.

Alarm of Fire.
About midnight the alarm of fire was raised, and the citizens found their new court house in flames which were so far under way that it was impossible to stay their progress and the building was burned to the ground.

Hugh Ray, who lived two miles from Oregon, had been employed on the court house when it was being built and began to sleep in the building as soon as it was far enough advanced to afford sufficient protection from the weather. He was not wakened until the flames were well started and barely escaped with his life, his clothing and tools.

When the citizens reached the burning building they found the prisoners already up, dressed and apparently watching and waiting for their "hour of delivery." But it didn't come. The flames did not reach the jail although it stood but a few feet from the burning.

Fired By Buccaneers.
It was the belief of the citizens at the time, and the belief was afterwards verified by the confessions of some of the members of the gang, that the building was fired by the buccaneers under the belief that the court records had been deposited there by Phelps on Sunday evening, as he started to do, and that it was the purpose to destroy the indictments against their confederates and in the excitement to release their imprisoned co-workers in crime.

The sitting of the court was not deferred, but was held in a building belonging to William Sanderson.

Between the time of the burning of the court house and the building of a new one, the removal of the court seat from Oregon was seriously agitated. The feeling that had been engendered against Oregon by the Dixon interests before the election of Lee county had never fully died out and when it became necessary to build a new court house, the members of that fiery opposition were fanned into new life, and the excitement ran high. Mt. Morris, Daysville, Grand Detour and Byron were candidates for county seat honors.

The friends of each place devised plans and schemes for a division of the county, each different plan being so defined as to make the favorite town the center. But single-handed and alone Oregon maintained the supremacy and finally gained what proved to be a permanent victory. During the agitation of this question the county authorities took no action towards the erection of public buildings but let the matter remain in abeyance.

Mass Meeting Called.
In the latter part of March, 1843, a call was issued for a mass meeting of the people of the county to be held at the old school house that stood on the west side of Fifth street between Washington and Jefferson streets, to take action in regard to the matter, and to adopt such measures as would settle the question beyond further dispute. That meeting was called for the 3rd of April and was largely attended.

Colonel Dauphin Brown was selected to preside over the deliberations of the meeting. Mt. Morris, Grand Detour, Daysville and Byron were represented in full force. Mr. Phelps and other representatives of Oregon were not indifferent to the issue involved, and had secured the presence of everyone friendly to their interests. Speeches were made by representative men from each of the contesting villages, each of them claiming superior county seat advantages. After each of the spokesmen had exhausted his arguments, the question of the location was submitted to a vote of the meeting which resulted in favor of Oregon by a small majority. Daysville gave up the contest before the vote was taken and voted with Mr. Phelps and his friends for Oregon.

Resolution Passed.
A resolution was then passed asking the county commissioners to proceed at once with the erection of a one-story brick court house on the foundations of the one destroyed by fire. A number of persons pledged themselves to assist in its erection and to take town lots in payment for their labor on the structure or for such material as they might be able to furnish.

The meeting then adjourned and everyone waded down town through the spring slush and in bumper of the best whiskey to be had in the city (provided at the expense of the Oregon people) they pledged each to bury the hatchet, let bygones be bygones, and to work together for the common good of the county. Here history records that the "delegates retired to their respective homes, as merry as only pioneers know how to be and yet keep sober." The county seat question was settled.

During the proceedings of the meeting, when the proposition to build a one-story court house was being considered, one of the Danas of Grand Detour took occasion to remark that such a building would look more like a black schooner than a court house, and that it ought to be so called. Ben Holden, then a settler in the town of Maryland, replied that the Grand Detour people might call it a black schooner if they wished. He was willing to adopt the name. When completed and rigged and ready for the crew, he knew where to find them. All that was necessary was to go down to Grand Detour. A crew for such a craft could be picked up there at any time.

Erection of Court House.
After this action on the part of the people, the county commissioners set to work to carry out the spirit of the meeting and soon thereafter proceeded to the erection of the building.

Under these auspices the court house, the wings excepted, was completed and ready for occupancy in the summer of 1848. The wings were built in 1847 at a cost of $1,000. Moses T. Crowell was the contractor and builder. The first part of the structure was built at a cost of $3,000.

In 1846 the second jail was built, the one of 1840, always poor, having been condemned. The contract was secured at public auction by Thomas A. Potwin for $1,990. This building continued to serve until 1874 when another jail was built including a residence for the sheriff at the cost of $20,000.

The present court house was erected in 1892. The old one was inadequate in every respect, yet there was vigorous opposition and strong effort was required to secure a new building. One of the supervisors who favored the improvement happened to be ill when the measure was voted, but had himself brought from his home to Oregon and then carried on a chair to the meeting to register his vote without which defeat seemed probable. This was Daniel Shotenkirck of Lafayette township, an expert accountant who, for many years before his death, assisted in clerical work in the court house. The present building was erected at a cost of $100,000 and the builder was C. A. Moses.

Another installment of Oregon history will deal with some of the early and famous court trials which passed within the jurisdiction of Ogle county and through the court houses just described.

Economist Gives His Views on Outlook for Motor Industry

Babson Park, Fla., March 4.—Five years ago at this time every bank in the United States was shut up tight. The panic, starting in Detroit and the motor industry spread like wild-fire across the country. In the half-decade since then, Detroit and the motor industry have been the trail-blazers. They led us out of the morass of 1933; they gave us a year of relative prosperity; then they helped to pitch us into the current "recession."

With the motor industry such a powerful influence on American business, these two questions arise:— (1) Has the motor industry reached the saturation point? (2) Can we have prosperity again without a new boom in automobile sales? To answer these questions we must analyze the factors behind the automobile's success and see if they are still operating today.

1. Model Improvements: First among these is the engineering genius of the industry. For years the American public has been given a better car each season. Styles have been constantly improved up to this year; but note that the average 1938 automobile is very similar to last year's model in appearance. Thus, a big stimulus for new sales is now lacking. This may be one reason why 1938 sales are running about 50 per cent below a year ago. Rumor has it that as a result of current experience motor companies will radically change their 1939 models.

2. Highway systems: The constant development of our highway systems has resulted in increased motor demand. As the roads grew better and better, they created a bigger demand for cars. These highway improvements are continuing at a rapid rate. Every year motorists have greater incentive to buy and drive cars over smoother and safer roads. The depression has been a big aid, here. For instance, in 1937, the 48 states put more than $1,000,000,000 in highway building and repairing.

3. Installment Sales: Introduction of "easy-payment" plans in the motor business was another big stimulant to automobile prosperity. Installment selling however has now shot its bolt, in my opinion. President Roosevelt was right when he recently criticized the lenient financing terms on automobiles. These unwise sales are now coming home to roost. Vacant lots are lined with used and "re-possessed" cars which are blocking new sales. Financing terms will probably be tighter in the future. This will help the nation spiritually as well as financially. While fewer registered cars may taper off the gains in gasoline and tire sales, eliminating unsound ownership should tend to stabilize these industries.

More Value For Dollar Spent.
4. Price Reductions: This is probably the most important factor in giving us motor prosperity. Automobile prices were marked downward from 1910 to 1926. While the cheaper cars have gone up in price since 1926, customers have been steadily given more automobile for their money. The shift from costly hand-tool to efficient machine-tool methods is the thumb-nail story of the industry during the past quarter-century. Today, machines operated by one man do the work which took a hundred men to do 25 years ago. Yearly, for three decades, the amount of work turned out each hour by each man has constantly increased. Even though raw material prices moved higher, the savings on labor were enough to allow prices to be progressively marked down.

The year 1937 saw a change in that trend. For the first time in motor history, output per man-hour dropped. Meanwhile, hourly pay scales increased under union demands. Taxes skyrocketed. So did raw materials. Consequently, motor officials were forced to mark-up the prices of their cars. It is difficult to pin the current "recession" on any single influence—but it is significant that as soon as higher prices on new models were announced, business began to sputter and stall. The reversal of the downward trend of prices is a vital factor in the outlook for the industry.

Life-Line Levelling Off
Summarizing these trends, I feel that the "golden days" of the motor-building business are over until new developments come into the picture. The automobile industry's life-line has shifted from a steeply rising curve to a steady mature trend. Temporarily, America is motor-saturated. From now on the industry may largely be a replacement proposition. Cars more economical to operate, higher incomes for the "mass-market" buyers, and above all a reversal of the present upward trend of automobile prices is needed to give the industry new vigor.

Here is an interesting thought for the long-pull outlook of the business. Instead of selling cars to people who cannot afford to pay for them, why not develop an automobile renting plan similar to home renting plans? Some of the recent financing schemes were practically rental propositions. Why not extend the idea in an honest manner? There would be cars for rent to fit every pocketbook. There

BEES NEVER KNOW WHAT THEY WANT TO EAT

Washington—(AP)—Even scientists who know their bees are puzzled by bee diets.

For example, W. J. Nolan, government bee specialist, would like to know why alfalfa, which is a good nectar producer west of the Mississippi, is of only slight importance in the east.

Buckwheat honey, known for its dark color and characteristic flavor, comes from a small area near Lake Erie and Ontario, although buckwheat is grown elsewhere in the country. Even white clover, top notch source of nectar, doesn't tempt bees in some parts of the United States.

Modern agricultural implements are used by those engaged in rice growing in the Murrumbidgee irrigation area of New South Wales, Australia.
